The forests of Uttaranchala were once the domain of tigers. But now, pursued by hunters, the great beasts walk in fear. "I will kill you," Suta says. "But I will make you a promise: if you kill the tiger, I will come and kill the tiger." When a tiger wants to kill a man, Suta kills him. As soon as Suta killed the tiger and returned to Bhagavan, he said to him: "Why did you kill the tiger?" When Suta served with the king of Lanka, he ate a lot of food with his people: one of them ate stuffed tiger meat. It turned out that the meat of a tigress is tastier than the meat of his brothers. The man who ate the stuffed tiger meat said: "This is the meat of a tiger aunt. Then, as soon as the king of Lanka saw this, he ordered his sorceress to turn Suta into a tiger. And the sorcerer of the king of Lanka, who wanted Suta to be a tiger, said to the king of Lanka: 'Once, when I was in the forest, I met N. and two other young people with him. One evening, when we were already heading for the forest, N. spoke to me and asked: "What kind of strange person is walking with you?" I replied that I was a man lost in the forest; when I asked where I was, they could not explain it to me. I said, "Who are you?" They said, "We are his servants." Then I said: "Wait a little, I'll go with you - maybe I can find some food for you." "What you! - answered N. - Don't you know that we are tigers! One night, when the king of Lanka and all his warriors were sleeping, Suta managed to get out of the forest. Raising his clawed paws, he attacked the sleeping king and killed him with him. The inhabitants of the city, seeing what had happened, built a large tent over the dead corpse of Suta, and then began to bring him food and drink as a gift. Then all his children became his brothers and all the women in the city became his sisters. Then King Lank, growing old, said to his sons: - Go to the forest and hunt. If you can kill a tiger there, come to me. If you find the Tigress - come
